In recent years, government funding of higher education has been falling, with subsidies not even covering 40% of our budget. As expenses are reined in, NTU must search for other sources of funding in order for academic affairs to run smoothly. Simultaneously, the world continues to internationalize, yet our campus' academic affairs funds hardly even reach 1/10 of those at world-renowned universities.

Therefore, NTU actively expands its revenue sources to continue its operations, undertaking improvements and strengthening its international competitiveness. Money raised will be used in the academic affairs funds and according to NTU's long-term plans, which allows for a more effective implementation in projects like the promotion of comprehensive academic affairs, infrastructure, large university-level activities, and other urgently crucial items. Hopefully, the alumni and the public alike can join together in guaranteeing NTU's perpetual progress.
